'Wild West' comes back to West Sac

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento will be the site of the "world premier" of a musical on Friday.

The curtain will rise at 8 p.m. for a production of "The Code of Whiskey King," brought to life by an enthusiastic troupe from the West Sacramento Community Theater Company.

Playing a lead role will be Almis Udrys, a 32-year old resident of Southport. His "day job" is as a health policy consultant for Republicans in the State Assembly. Udrys is married, with two kids.

What is "The Code of Whiskey King" about?

"It's set in former Gold Rush town in California in the 1870s," answered Udrys. "The Gold Rush thing is dying down. My character is 'Abel', who has come out west looking for gold. I can't really find any, and I break my leg and have to figure out what to do. So I set up a telegraph shop – in a town with no telegraph wires. The play is about my adventures and misadventures trying to pretend to run a telegraph shop."

Colorful characters abound.

" 'Charlie' is the Native American outcast kid I pick up, and 'George' is the Chinese kid I pick up as another sidekick," said Udrys. "Then there's 'Nan,' the manager of the saloon-slash-entertainment-house-slash-house of ill repute. She's a teacher turned bar manager and saloon girl."

No 1870s musical setting would be complete without a villain.

"The bad guy is 'Mike,'" said Udrys. "He's just basically a jerk to everybody in town – he thinks he's a big shot. His mission is to take over the whole town, one way or another."

The production and its music are "fun," said Udrys. But "much of the play is about broken dreams and longing for a better life." The show is family-friendly, he said.

Udrys took voice lessons and performed in college and theater musicals and plays. But this is his first stint with West Sacramento's theater company. The rehearsal schedule isn't easy on a family with young kids.

"I auditioned on the spur of the moment," said Udrys. "My wife handed me a flyer and said 'you should do this.' I asked her if she knew what it meant to be part of something like this. She said no. But she does now."

"The Code of Whiskey King" was written by Leo McElroy, a retired broadcast journalist with a number of other musicals under his belt.

"This is my only unproduced musical," McElroy told the News-Ledger. "We had gone through three other theater companies in the area with this over the past ten years, and for one reason or other, for reasons having nothing to do with this show, they canceled out. One of them lost a director. One lost its space. One we never figured out."

He met theater company board member Cindy Schmidt, and things clicked into place.

"Cindy knew I was a playwright," said McElroy. "I complained to her that I have this musical still waiting around, and it was a big musical with a big cast. Cindy said 'I think we can tackle that.' It will be on a big stage with fabulous sets."

"The Code of Whiskey King" runs from Oct. 2 to Oct. 24. Showtimes are 8 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays, 2 p.m. on Sundays. Tickets are $10 for general admission, $7 for students or seniors. The production will use the school auditorium at 920 Westacre Road.

'Police academy' for interested citizens

DEPUTY CHIEF HENRY SERRANO and CHIEF DAN DRUMMOND talk to a group of citizens about the workings of the city's police department last Thursday. It was 'day one' of a multi-week informational 'academy.' (Report & photo by the News-Ledger)

Seventeen residents of West Sacramento and the region showed up last week for the first day of an 'academy' designed to teach citizens how the city's police department works. The evening classes include a tour of the Jefferson Boulevard headquarters and another tour of the county jail in Woodland.

"You will hopefully become our ambassadors," Chief Dan Drummond told the visitors. "You will get to know us and refer the information to your friends and neighbors."

Among the topics discussed at the first session was "community policing" – an attempt to not only respond to 911 calls, but to initiate contacts in order to prevent problems from ever getting to that level.

"57 percent of our calls are initiated by you, and 43 percent are initiated by us," said Deputy Chief Serrano. "We really want to strive for 50/50, where the officers are engaged enough in the community to deal with things before they become a crisis."

City Councilman Mark Johannessen dropped in on Thursday's session. During the debate about a local gang injunction, he said, a problem became apparent.

"I found a breakdown in communication with the police and a breakdown in trust," he said. "One of the things I'd like to see is a building of trust with the police."

This "academy" session is full, but future sessions are planned.

McGowan lobbies on Delta

Yolo County Supervisor Mike McGowan of West Sacramento is in the nation's capital this week to talk about issues related to this region's Delta.

McGowan was scheduled to be in a meeting yesterday with the Secretary of the Interior, Ken Salazar, and meet with other officials. Discussions were to include "federal and state plans to address California drought impacts in 2010; the Bay Delta Conservation Plan; levees, climate change and adaption possibilities, and federal and state action plans," said a Yolo County press release.

"This region is fully aware of how fragile the Delta is," McGowan was quoted in the press statement. "The Delta counties have worked very hard to make sure that the governor and legislature know they need to include us in solutions to the Delta's problems, and they need our involvement for these plans to be successful. . . The federal government will play a significant role in those solutions and I want to make sure they get the same message."

State and federal officials are holding a series of meetings on water resource challenges for California. When available, future agendas and lists of speakers will be posted at www.doi.gov and www.water.ca.gov.

SUSPECTS NAMED

West Sacramento police have identified two suspects in a Sept. 13 shooting that killed a man in the parking lot of a nightclub on western West Capitol Avenue.

They believe Martin Ventura, 23, fired the shots that killed Jesus Cortez-Heredia and injured another victim, and Rocios "Rosie" Ibanez, 32, was driving the car that Ventura shot from. She may also be known as Margarita Alapizco.

Ventura is described as a Hispanic, about 5' 11" tall and 200 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes.

Ibanez is 5' 5", Hispanic, 135 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes.

The pair may be traveling with Ibanez's eight-year old daughter and "may be in the Sacramento or Stockton area, or possibly en route to Mexico" said Lieutenant Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department.

Why is everyone in such a big hurry?

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

This past weekend, as my family tries to do each year at about this time, everyone jumped in their cars and trucks and headed over to Bodega Bay to spend a few days at the ocean. In addition to my wife and four kids, their spouses and my three grandsons, my mother and my brother and his family also get invited, and we just rent a big house that isn't too fancy and everyone pretty much comes and goes as they please. Although everyone can't make it most years, there's still usually never enough room for everyone to sleep comfortably in their own bed, but we bring sleeping bags and there's always an extra couch or two if needed. And one year the weather was so nice that I just threw a few blankets down in the bed of my pickup truck and went to sleep under more stars than a person could ever count.

For those of you not familiar with Bodega Bay, it's where Alfred Hitchcock filmed The Birds and is only an hour or so north of San Francisco. I have always loved the numerous beaches which stretch along the Northern California coastline just above it and have been going walkabout on them since I was a teenager. And just south of Bodega Bay is Dillon Beach, where my high school best friend and I used to pitch our two-man tent at least once every summer hoping that a couple of really pretty young girls in bikinis would stumble upon us (which for reasons we could never quite figure out, never once happened). In fact, we usually considered ourselves lucky if our beer didn't get stolen and our tent didn't blow away in the middle of the night.

There are numerous ways to get to Bodega Bay, but I have always preferred the long way, through the winding rural roads in the pretty wine country and then over into downtown Petaluma, a lovely little city with lots of old Victorian homes and a main street that still looks like it belongs back in the 1950s. My wife, on the other hand, likes to get where's she's going and prefers to stay on the freeways for as long as possible. And this year, she even added some new technology to the task at hand.

"What in the world is that thing?" I asked her, pointing to a fancy and colorful little gadget that was making strange noises and staring at me from the dash board as we motored away from our house.

"That's my work GPS."

"Your work GPS?" I asked, still not having a clue what she was talking about.

"GPS stands for global positing satellite, Daryl. It helps people get from one place to another. And not only will it give us directions through all that wine country that you like to get lost in, but it even will tell us the best restaurants and points of interest along the way. You know, you really are going to have to join the 21st century. I use my GPS all the time when I have to do any work-related traveling. It's wonderful!"

"What's it doing now?" I asked, noticing that a human (well, almost human) sounding voice was starting to say stuff.

"It's just telling us where we should turn next," my wife explained.

"But we're not even out of West Sac yet," I complained. "I know where to turn! Is that thing going to keep yakking away like that the whole darn way?

"I'll turn it down if you want. We'll still be able to see exactly where we are on the screen. I just don't want us to get lost like we usually do."

"But that's all part of the fun," I tried to explain. "I mean, how is it that we've all become slaves to getting to where we're going as fast as humanly possible. Whatever happened to people like Henry David Thoreau, who used to even refuse to get on a relatively slow-moving train, knowing that such speedy transportation would prevent him from seeing and hearing all the beautiful sights and sounds that make travel meaningful and fun? In fact, he was convinced that when going from one place to another, we should always walk, although he said it was okay to mount a horse in an emergency. But nowadays we jump on a plane and can be all the way across the country in about five hours, having of course missed all the beautiful scenery and interesting people we would have met along the way if we weren't always in such a big rush to get where we're going."

"Thoreau lived in a rundown shack next to an insect-infested pond and made pencils for a living," my wife informed me, having majored in American literature in her undergraduate days.

"But he was never in a hurry," I quickly reminded her. "And he never once worried about getting lost."

"That's because he didn't need to be in Bodega Bay making dinner for 30 people in two hours!"

The Sacramento Kings will be opening their 2009/10 training camp on Tuesday with a new head coach Paul Westphal, a roster of new young faces and the NBA's 21st highest payroll. This season the Kings highest paid player is the often injured forward Kevin Martin ($10,180,170) with the lowest salary belonging to Jon Brockman ($457,588).

The Kings, who only won 17 games last season, have invited some veterans to camp like 6-9 forward Sean May, 6-10 center Melvin Ely, and 6-5 guard Desmond Mason along with a few new faces picked up in trades. One of the new faces is Sergio Rodriguez who along with rookie Lanny Smith and No. 1 pick Tyreke Evans will be pushing Beno Udrih for the starting point guard position. Jon Brockman, Andres Nocioni, Donte Greene and rookie Omri Casspi will be vying for playing time against Francisco Garcia and Jason Thompson at the forward position and the Kings plan on using Spencer Hawes at center and barring a trade or free agent signings, the Kings will probably use a combination of player to back up the center spot.

But even with a new head coach, a new coaching staff and with a revamped team with a salary cap geared up for next year's free agent bonanza trouble looms on the basketball court for the Kings and the NBA.

At this point, the NBA is going to start the season with some temp (referees) help running up and down the court to monitor all these temperamental, spoiled, and grossly overpaid athletes. This should be very interesting for NBA fans that are deciding whether pay for season tickets or investing their hard earned cash in the housing foreclosure market.

NBA referees are prepared to be locked out for the start of the season after negotiations with the league on a new contract broke down this week when Commissioner David Stern ended their latest bargaining session. The league wants to freeze salaries for the first year with a 1 percent increase in year two of the new deal.

The league's contract with its referees expired on Sept. 1 has the NBA seeking cuts in areas such as the referees' benefits, travel budget and their per diems but the Referees are accusing the NBA of conspiring to phase out the older referees or maybe the NBA is sending a strong message to the NBA players, whose collective bargaining agreement expires after the 2011 season.

Referees were due to open their training camp on Sept. 20, and the league's first preseason game is scheduled for Oct. 1 at Utah. Without a deal soon, the NBA will begin the season with replacement officials for the first time since 1995.

Diamond Notes

Well, it's over for the Giants (83-73) but they made a nice run at the playoffs ending up 10 games behind the Dodgers and five back in the Wild Card race. It was fun while it lasted but to bad for the G-Men, they were actually picked by the media to finish at the bottom of the West Division. They made us proud but they folded down the stretch run like a lawn chair so now it's wait unless next year or better yet, stick a fork in them because they're done!

It was their lack of timely hitting and their chronic weakness in their middle of the order that team management waited too long to address. The Giants traded for first baseman Ryan Garko but he ended hitting.226 with 2 home runs and driving in 12 runs in 106 trips to the plate. Not good for team starving for run production!

Speaking of done, the Oakland A's (75-81) are cruising along finishing up their season by pounding opposing pitching but they'll end up a trailing the Angels by 16 games as we head into the leagues final week of the season. Playoffs are scheduled to start October 7th.

Anyway, the Giants will finish up the season with three games at home against Arizona and limp to the finish line with a three game series in San Diego while the A's return from Seattle to finish up their season with a three game home stand against the division winning Angels.

NFL Notes

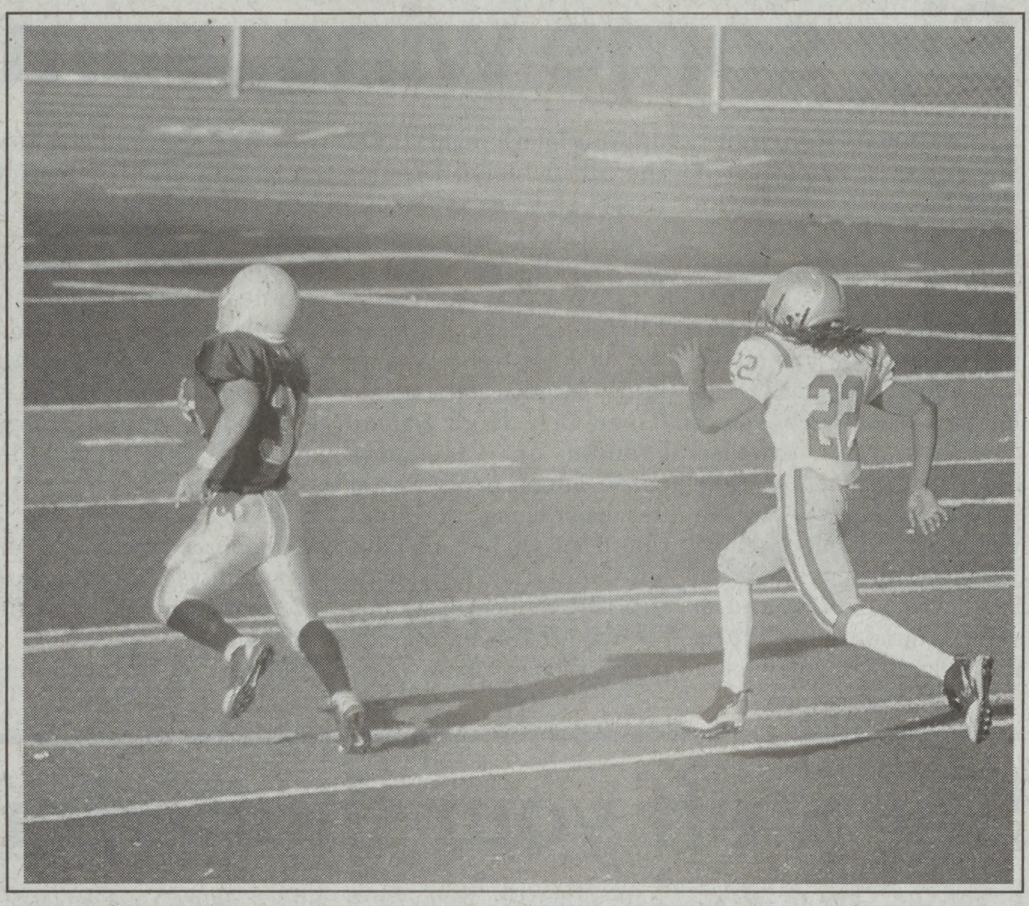

The Oakland Raiders (1-2) are back to being Raiders of last year with another horrible offensive exhibition of football. JaMarcus Russell was absolutely awful again last Sunday while leading the Silver and Black No-Attack to a 23-3 loss to Denver. Russell was 12 of 21 passes for 61 yards and threw two picks and was sacked three times.

The Raiders need to put this big fellow on the bench for a few games and put in the more mobile quarterback like Bruce Gradkowski or anybody else, on the field next week in Houston. Russell is like a huge statue standing in the back field with a target on his chest. Lucky for most Raiders fans the game was a black out in our area!

The 49ers (2-1) lost a 27-24 heart breaking game on a last second Brett Favre desperation pass that should have never materialized but that why we love to our football. It was exciting to sit and watch the 49ers battle and dominate a football game but losing was hard to swallow. It didn't help that running back Frank Gore was injured on the first play but with that said, the 49ers played hard nose football and the future looks bright for

FOR WESTMORE OAKS ELEMENTARY:

Sip some wine, sample some munchies

From Christy Jourdan Friends & Parents of Westmore Oaks Elementary School

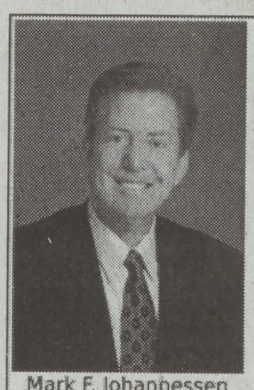

On Friday, the West Sacramento Educational Foundation and Friends & Parents of Westmore Oaks Elementary School are coming together to raise funds for the school at their second annual "Wine Tasting Community Social." There will be wine, food from local restaurants, and a silent auction. Each $20 ticket is also an entry for a drawing for a 3-night stay at the all-inclusive Dreams Resort and Spa in Tulum, Mexico, donated by Ships and Trips Travel.

Westmore Oaks Elementary School started the 2009-2010 school year in its new location at the former River City High School campus on Clarendon Street, after over 55 years at its former home. The funds raised for this event have been earmarked for a shade structure on the playground.

"Fundraising is the primary means of providing the fun and educational programs and activities for our students, and in achieving our huge goal of purchasing a much needed shade structure for our playground," said Gina DeAnda, PTA President. "The Westmore Oaks PTA is excited to support this event. We are thankful to the West Sacramento Educational Foundation, parents and our community for their support of Westmore Oaks Elementary."

Andrea Cameron Johnson, a school parent, is the event organizer again this year. "What makes the Wine Tasting Community Social such a fantastic event are all the individuals who support it," said Cameron Johnson. "School Board members, City Council Members, teachers, parents, friends -- and even friends of friends! -- come together to mingle and have a great time while tasting wine, sampling appetizers, and listening to music. It's a wonderful way to bring a community together while supporting a local elementary school."

For further information or to purchase tickets, contact Andrea Cameron Johnson at (916) 715-2224, or visit www.winetastingsocial.com. For more information on the West Sacramento Educational Foundation, visit www.wsef.net.

Free 'seasonal flu' shots Saturday in West Sacramento

From the County of Yolo

On October 3, the Yolo County Health Department will offer free flu clinics at two locations:
Woodland Community/ Senior Center, 2001 East Street in Woodland, and Riverbank Elementary School, 1100 Carrie Street in West Sacramento, CA

Both clinics will be open to the public from 9:30 am to 12:30 p.m.

Parking may be limited at both sites, but a free shuttle service through Yolobus and the Washington Unified School District is available. The Woodland clinic shuttle pick up will be located at the County Fair Mall on Gibson and the West Sacramento shuttle will pick up at multiple points along Sacramento Avenue. For a complete shuttle schedule, go to www.yolobus.com.

Vaccinations will be provided for any Yolo County resident over six months of age on a first-come, first-served basis. Both traditional injectable vaccine and FluMist (a nasal spray) vaccine will be available. Informational materials about the vaccine in English, Russian, and Spanish will be provided at the clinics, and interpreters will be available on site.

Seasonal influenza is responsible for approximately 36,000 deaths per year. Those at highest risk for severe disease include young children, elderly people, and those with weak immune systems due to disease or pregnancy.

"Not only is this an important public service to help protect those who are at risk for seasonal flu, but these clinics are also a great opportunity for the Health Department, along with all its partners, to prepare to provide vaccine for large numbers of people when Novel H1N1 flu vaccine becomes available," states Dr. Joseph Iser, Yolo County Health Department Director-Health Officer.

The Yolo Health Department expects to provide some clinics for "H1N1" flu vaccinations when those vaccinations become available this fall, said Cheryl Boney, Deputy Director of Public Health Programs. The October 3 clinic is only for the expected usual "seasonal" flu.

Vaccines are provided through the California Department of Public Health Immunization Branch, and the clinics will be implemented with the help of the following partner agencies: City of Woodland, City of West Sacramento, Woodland Healthcare, Washington Unified School District, Yolo County Transportation District (Yolobus), UC Davis Medical Center, California State University Sacramento, American Red Cross, along with many others.

For more information about the clinics, go to www.yolohealth.org and click on the "What's New" link, or call (530) 666-8645.

Some regional drug stores and supermarkets are also offering flu vaccinations.

Rite Aid has announced that it will offer seasonal flu shots at its location at 1260 West Capitol Avenue on Oct. 2-3 and Oct. 16017. The cost of the shot may be covered by your health insurance or Medicare program. Visit www.riteaid.com or call 1-866-751-1494 for more information.

Across the Bay, Da Raiders, who gained just 137 total yards and were held to 3 points because of Darren McFadden fumbles and Russell's interceptions and the lack of receiving by their world class sprinter Heyward-Bey (no catches), the Raiders are in big trouble. Niners on the other hand still haven't signed their No. 1 pick and their offense could use some new plays but San Francisco is starting to back the memories of the good old Joe Montana days.

Well, let's see what Week 4 brings to our local teams with the 49ers (-10) taking out their frustrations on the defenseless Rams at Candlestick Park (1:15 p.m.-FOX) while the Oakland Raiders (+10) travel to Houston (10 a.m.-ch.10) and try and win on for Big Al.

Aztec's Picks
My dog "Aztec" lost his "College Lick of the Week" when Michigan failed to cover the 19 point spread and but he was 3-1 in the NFL to improve his season picks to 7-8. This week the "College Lick" is Notre Dame (-13 ½) at home against Washington. In the NFL, Da Bears (-10) will cover against the Lions, the Colts (-6) will trample the Seahawks and the Niners (-10) will beat up the Rams. On Monday, the dog likes the Packers (+4) to mug the Viking and Brett Favre. I think my dog Aztec, who is still howling outside at night, is becoming a "Favre Hater" – you think he remembers that "Hail Mary Pass" last Sunday in Minnesota!

Pointers For Parents

Put The Fun Back In Youth Sports

(NAPS)—Youth sports teach children valuable life lessons, provide exercise and, most importantly, are fun.

But according to recent research, 77 percent of adults feel that youth sports are too competitive; parents identify themselves as the worst offenders.

Positive communication can help keep parents and players on the same page all season long.

"A first step toward more positive behavior is communication," said Jim Thompson, founder and executive director of Positive Coaching Alliance at www.positivecoach.org and author of "Positive Sports Parenting" and "The High School Sports Parent." Thompson recommends sharing anecdotes and photo memories from practice and game days.

NEWS-LEDGER EDITORIAL:

Free fun

This is just one of those weekends where it's just too easy to find something fun – and cheap – to do. And that goes double for those of you with kids.

The fun starts at 10:30 a.m., when the annual Community Day Parade kicks off. The parade location is going to rotate among different parts of town annually, and this year, it will be in Broderick. Cummins Way will present good viewing opportunities. The bands, cheerleaders, horses and antique vehicles will wind their way over to River Walk Park at Third Street, all for your viewing pleasure. And the cost? It's free, of course.

As the parade winds down, the annual "Neighbors Fair" will fire up. The fair lasts from noon to 5 p.m. at River Walk Park – near the new CalSTRS high-rise building and ziggurat building north of the Tower Bridge. There will be some pretty good musicians – free – as well as other activities and food for sale. For more information on the fair or parade, visit www.wsneighborsfair.com.

On Sunday, courtesy of local Rotary members and others, there's another free event: the Camellia Symphony Orchestra will pay a call to West Sacramento city hall, 1110 West Capitol Avenue, from 1-3 p.m. The event begins with an "instrument petting zoo" – giving kids and their parents a chance to learn about and play different orchestra instruments. At 2 p.m., a concert of "fun and fast paced classical music selections" will follow.

Former city council member Jim Cahill reminded us of something on Saturday. He was speaking to a crowd of people honoring the life of the late Stu Greenfeld, who had served as an administrator in the state education department and as a local school superintendent. Cahill was talking about some columns Greenfeld had written for the News-Ledger after Greenfeld retired. On one of those columns, the editor created a pretty good "typo": in Stu's byline, his name was inadvertently changed to "Stud" Greenfeld.

Stu noticed the typo, and pointed it out with great good cheer. And no, now that you mention it, he never did demand a correction.

Letters to the Editor

Storm drain suggestion

Many streets in older parts of town have no storm drains. Also, many sections have sunken, causing potentially unhealthy and odorous ponding. It's too expensive to install storm drains, even prior to repaving, I've been told.

How's this for an Rx? Whenever we have ponding like this due to sunken portions of city streets, why not tap into the sewer lines below? Between the top of the sunken pavement and sewer line, we could install "plumber traps", preventing sewer odors from surfacing. While such water volumes would seem less than noteworthy, major drains – like 15th and Alabama – might need some controls, restricting storm drain during peak hours of normal sewer usage (to prevent backup). And yes, ponding is caused year around by rain, lawn watering and car washing, etc.

So, without installing storm drains, we could reduce that standing water and negative health features. To protect mini-drains from heavy vehicles, "No Parking" signs could be placed on each side, assuring accessibility for maintenance staff.

Hispanic Heritage Month

This month is Hispanic Heritage Month, taking place from September 15th through October 15th. Many of the barriers that existed for Latinos in the past have fallen and we are now at the forefront of reformers today. This annual celebration has truly altered the American landscape and given new inspiration and hope for Hispanics everywhere. There is a huge richness in every Latin culture and I hope you will join me and many others in celebrating Hispanic Heritage Month.

Party for the 'posse'

Sheriff Ed Prieto has announced an Oct. 3 dinner-dance to raise fund for the Yolo County Sheriff's Posse. The event will begin at 6 p.m. and include music from Jeremy Fristoe. It will take place at Waite Hall in the fairgrounds on Gum Avenue in Woodland

The "posse" is a group of volunteers who provide their own horses and transportation to help the sheriff's department on search-and-rescue missions and at events such as the County Fair, Public Safety Days and Woodland Christmas Parade. The group is a nonprofit organization, and funds from Saturday's even will help defray costs.

Tickets are $25 at the door. For information, call Saundra Snyder, (916) 719-0573.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Drag Me to Hell" — "Drag Me to Hell" is the most fun you'll have being scared — ever. Director Sam Raimi does a masterful job of mixing comedy, horror and suspense, and the result is one of the most entertaining movies of the year.

Alison Lohman stars as the über-cute Christine Brown, a loan officer at a bank who makes the mistake of refusing a loan extension on an elderly gypsy woman's mortgage. Bad move, Cupcake. Gypsy Woman also is batguano crazy, and she puts a curse on the girl. Christine now has three days of torment before a demon drags her to hell. She tries everything from séances to animal sacrifice, but the torments keep coming with increasing intensity. Can she escape the gypsy curse? Watch and find out. You won't regret it.

"The Mighty Boosh Special Edition DVD (Seasons 1–3)" — Viewers of Adult Swim are finally getting a taste of what British television audiences have been raving about for years. "The Mighty Boosh" is the trippiest, most surreal comedy show you'll ever inflict upon your brain.

The show revolves around the bizarre exploits of small-eyed, jazz aficionado Howard Moon and his space-age glam hipster buddy Vince Noir. Joined by their friends Bolo the Gorilla and Naboo the Shaman, the gang take a three-season journey through Time and Space'— that is if by "Time" we mean "The Zoo" and "Space" meaning "A Tiny Curio Shop in Dalston."

The boxed set includes seven discs that contain all three seasons of the show (with extras and audio commentary), plus a bonus disc containing more than 2 1/2 hours of never-before-seen footage, including a collection of

Jill Jackson's HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD ... It's amazing, the things actors will do to play a role. In her book "Hollywood Trivia Factory," Aubrey Malone tells us that Faye Dunaway lost 20 pounds to look gaunt for her role in "Bonnie and Clyde." She did it by hauling sandbags around and eating as little as possible to survive. And believe me, those cheekbones stood out. ... Robert Duval got a job singing in a bar to prepare himself for his Oscar-winning role in "Tender Mercies." ... For her role in "Sophie's Choice," Meryl Streep learned to speak both Polish and German fluently. ... To get into the mind of a deaf mute for her role in "Johnny Belinda," Jane Wyman studied sign language and lip reading, and worked with the handicapped to familiarize herself with their daily routines. She also wore plastic earplugs on the set to block out all sound.

Martin Sheen stayed drunk for two days for a scene in "Apocalypse Now," and Dustin Hoffman stayed up all night to look tired for a scene in "Marathon Man," which prompted co-star Sir Larry Olivier to ask, "Why don't you try acting, my good man?" We aren't told Hoffman's answer.

Brad Pitt actually had one of his front teeth chipped and shaved his head to look suitably menacing for "The Fight Club," and since then Brad has shaved his head often, dieted to look gaunt and otherwise looked much like his handsome self. ... Jon Voight spent five weeks learning to play basketball in a wheelchair for his role in "Coming Home." ... And Jack Lemmon really prepared himself for his role in "Days of Wine and Roses." He attended AA meetings, went to hospitals to watch alcoholics drying out, and spent days going around in a straitjacket. ... For his role as Ghandi in the movie of that name, Ben Kingsley lost 17 pounds, went bald, took up yoga and even learned how to spin thread. ... And Warren Beatty actually learned Russian (and that ain't easy) for his role in "Reds." As you can see, acting isn't all just smiling or crying into a camera.

Faye Dunaway in "Bonnie and Clyde"

AND a few weird fashion foibles: Yul Brenner wore only black in the last years of his life. ... Joan Collins wore a dress to a press conference made of all the newspaper stories that were written about her that year. ... When Kirk Douglas was ready for his guests to go home, he would retire to his bedroom and return in his pajamas. ... Mae West wore 10-inch heels. ... John Wayne wore lifts in his shoes, and a corset. ... Lana Turner once owned 698 pairs of shoes. I was not told who counted. ... Believe it or not, it's said that George Hamilton throws away socks after he has worn them once. This I find a bit difficult to believe.

Actors will either gain or lose weight to play a role. Robert DeNiro put on 60 pounds to play Jake LaMotta in "Raging Bull"; Gary Oldman lost so much weight for a role in "Sid and Nancy" that he had to be hospitalized. Jennifer Jason Leigh went down to 86 pounds to play an anorexic in "The Best Little Girl in the World," and Shirley MacLaine put on 20 pounds to play Madame Sousatska.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Oct. 13, 1792, the cornerstone is laid for a presidential residence in the newly designated capital city of Washington. The executive mansion soon became known as the "White House" because its white-gray Virginia freestone contrasted strikingly with the red brick of nearby buildings.

• On Oct. 12, 1915, British nurse Edith Cavell is executed by a German firing squad for helping Allied soldiers escape from German-occupied Belgium during World War I. When Cavell and others were arrested, she made a full confession and was sentenced to death.

• On Oct. 18, 1922, "Robin Hood," starring Douglas Fairbanks, opens in Hollywood. As a publicity stunt, Fairbanks had posed atop a New York hotel in costume, with bow and arrow. He and several others shot arrows from the building, and accidentally injured a man when an arrow flew through an open window.

A Canadian Thanksgiving

When I was a little girl, my family lived in Canada for several years. Canada is a bit of a melting pot, and some customs have been adopted from other countries. Thanksgiving Day has been celebrated as a holiday in Canada on the second Monday of October since 1957. It's similar to the American holiday in many ways — a celebration of faith, family, food and football.

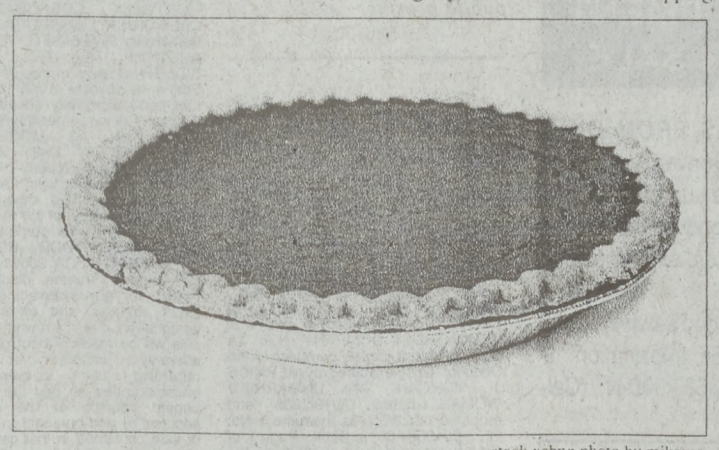

Thanksgiving Day in Canada also is linked to the tradition of harvest festivals that date back to early native peoples, as well as some European traditions. The Canadian Thanksgiving holiday is a three-day celebration starting on the weekend and ending on Monday. It's a time when families gather together at church and at home to give thanks to God for their blessings.

The harvest festival cornucopia, or horn of plenty, overflowing with a bounty of seasonal fruits and vegetables including corn and pumpkins also is a traditional symbol in Canada. The Canadian Football League games are a highlight of the holiday. It's also a time for a big family dinner featuring a turkey and an abundance of side dishes, and of course, desserts. This pumpkin pie recipe is an adaptation of a popular Canadian version of the traditional holiday dessert.

CANADIAN PUMPKIN PIE

For the best pumpkin pies, don't use the field or "Jack-o'-lantern" pumpkins, because the flesh makes a stringy pie filling. The smaller varieties known as sugar pumpkins with the dark-orange flesh are the best choice for baked goods. You can place the sugar pumpkin on a rimmed baking sheet, and bake it whole at 375 F until the flesh is soft, about an hour.

After the pumpkin has cooled, cut it open and scrape out the seeds and the cooked pulp. You can save the seeds and use them in other recipes. Mash up the pulp to use in baked goods. A three- to four -pound pumpkin should yield about 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cups of pumpkin puree. You can use the homemade pumpkin puree immediately or place it in an airtight container and freeze it for up to six months. When buying commercially processed pumpkin, use frozen or canned pumpkin puree, not pumpkin-pie filling, for the best results.

- 1 prepared (9-inch) single crust pastry
- 1/4 cup apricot or orange pre serves
- 1/2 cup brown sugar, packed
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 1/2 cups pumpkin puree
- 5 eggs, at room temperature
- 1 1/4 cups whole milk
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

1. Preheat oven to 350 F. Place the pastry into a 9-inch pie pan and press it down along the bottom and all sides of the pan. Crimp the edges of the pie crust together. Put the pie crust back into the freezer for 1 hour to firm up.

2. Place a piece of aluminum foil inside the pie shell, pressing down on the foil and covering the shell completely. Fill the shell up to the edges with pie weights or dried beans (about 2 pounds) and place it in the oven. Bake for 10 minutes, remove the foil and pie weights, and bake until the crust is pale brown, about 10 minutes more. Remove crust from oven and cool. Spread the preserves over the pie crust.

3. Reduce oven temperature to 325 F and prepare pie filling. Using a large bowl, combine the brown and white sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves and salt, and mix them together thoroughly. Mix in the pumpkin puree until ingredients are well-combined. Add the eggs, whisking the mixture together lightly. Add in the milk, whipping cream and vanilla, mixing until well-blended.

4. Pour the filling into the prepared crust. Bake until the filling puffs at the edges and the center is almost set and no longer liquid except for a quarter-size place in the center, about 55 minutes. Remove from the oven and allow the pie to cool and set on a rack. Cover and store pie in the refrigerator for up to 3 days. Makes one 9-inch pie (8 to 10 servings).
